excerpts from

THE ABIGAIL HOUSE

a private hostelry

Where would I be without this handy compendium? Where would any of the Survivors be, for that matter? Keeping up with the Ravens has never been easy.

They're a secretive lot. Crab's Eye is not what you would call a big town. In fact, very few New Englanders have even heard of it. Not surprising, we've done our level best to keep things quiet here. It would be child's play too, but the Ravens love their plotting and scheming. They love multiplying as well...

This book is our little way of keeping tabs on them. All the who, what and where we can get our hands on. One day soon, we suspect, there will be a reckoning of sorts. Rumor has it, that day is fast approaching. It keeps me busy.

Idle hands are the devil's playthings, as some say.

See here. Look at these faces. Criminals, basically. Criminals that escaped this fine country's court system. Many of their ancestors should have been hung, or at the very least, spent their remaining days rotting in prison cells. But some of them, Angela admittedly, were fairly clever. Put simply, they managed to Webb escape their sentences. In a perfect world, we should have expedited their fates. I suppose the blame rests on us.

Ah, there she is... Winnie Good. Waverly's great, great aunt?

Grandmother? I'll have to research that a bit. Like I mentioned, so many Ravens to keep track of. My work is never ending.

No time to rest it would seem. The Dansforth's yearly gala is nearly upon us and they don't appreciate surprises.

And neither do their many and varied guests. They come from all over the world. It's quite the scene. The guest list is a who's who of industry, celebrity and the obscure. You may recognize a few here and there. And when they arrive, where do they rest their weary bones?

At the Abigail House, of course.

We highly recommend that guests R.S.V.P.

Hemlock tea maybe, judging by the looks of it...

SHE'S ON HER WAY WHERE?!

We told her it wasn't a good idea. We can't force her not to go.

You actually could. Scarlett clearly knows who she is. If The Survivors get ahold of her, the power balance shifts dramatically. While we scramble and look for Waverly, she's already planning her next move.

Wilma is not safe there.

You might be surprised. She's tougher than she looks.

Speaking of looks--the whole school is spooked out about her.

How long do we wait to tell her?

That's her father's job.

He's certainly taking his sweet time. The longer he waits, the more time The Survivors have with her.

He's dealing with a lot, you understand that, right?

I understand we're all dealing with a lot. Maybe you could nudge him a bit. Or nudge Mrs. Good...

Mrs. Good? That won't be happening. That's a big no. And I suggest you stay out of her way too.

Now, do me a favor and keep an eye on Wilma, please.

Have a seat, make yourself at home. I'm so glad you decided to come over.

Donald--tea. Sandwiches.

I feel like I walked into a scene from Night at the Museum.

I feel bad about blindsiding you with those clippings I found of your father and mother. That must have seemed so out of nowhere.

I had no idea she was no longer with us. How old were you when she passed on?

I was very young. Like three years old. How old were you when your mother... passed away or, um, left or...?

Passed away, disappeared...no one knows really. It was last year, and I was living with relatives at the time. When I heard the news I came back to Crab's Eye.

I was the black sheep of the family. A big secret. But now... I guess my family needed to fill a missing spot.

Heartbreaking. Shall we take this outside on the veranda?

Scarlett dear, it's quite a mess out there. They're still setting up all the tables.

Daddy is having our annual party with some of our closest friends this weekend. It's quite the affair. A who's who of Crab's Eye's upper crust. It's really something to see. If you're good, I'll send you an invitation.

Oh look, there's Del helping with the staff. Donald, please tell him to go to his room. It's bad enough he won't behave like a Dansforth in school. But in this house, he's a Dansforth, like it or not.

But there are many visitors.
At times it's just hard to see who comes and goes...

Lloyd.

Ah, look who it is. So good to see you.

I live to serve.

But first,
if I may, how are you this evening?

I'm surviving,
Lloyd, thank you.
I would like very much to speak with Milton.

Do you request an escort?

Thank you, no. I'll be fine.

Of course, you will.

You would never guess by looking at it, but the Abigail House has hosted a long list of notable guests.

Famous writers, poets, celebrities, politicians, world leaders...

But the Abigail House is not just a hotel. It's a place to meet like-minded people. To exchange ideas. Plan. Perhaps even scheme, if you're so inclined.

Chief Patterson, a bit early for you, isn't it? What would the missus say?

The Abigail House is more than just an inn. It's a place where like-minded people can meet. Exchange ideas.

Are you here for company? Or for crossing?

Crossing. But you can keep me company in a bit.

Things said in the shadows remain in the shadows here.

Come in dear. Come in!

The Abigail House was built on such things.

Donald was just here. You two are busy, busy, busy...

So--what secrets do you have for me, Scarlett?
